A Note from Ron Salisbury

When my grandparents, Alejandro and Rosa Borquez, opened El Cholo in 1923, their goal was simple: serve great food, welcome guests like family, and create a place where people wanted to gather.

In those early days, the menu focused on a handful of dishes done exceptionally well—enchiladas, tacos, tamales, chile rellenos, and fresh tortillas made daily. More than 100 years later, we're returning to that philosophy.

We've listened to our guests and focused this menu on the El Cholo favorites that have stood the test of time. By concentrating on the dishes people love most, we're able to deliver greater consistency, offer many of these classics at more affordable prices, and create a stronger future for the wonderful people who make El Cholo feel like home every day.

In many ways, this menu is a return to our roots: good food, fair prices, friendly faces, and a warm welcome at the table.

Thank you for allowing our family to serve yours for more than a century. Your continued support means we can keep doing what we love—serving our communities and providing opportunities for the dedicated team members who are part of the El Cholo family.
